

Bomber Barron: Wing Commander James Fraser Barron DSO & Bar, DFC, DFM Pathfinder Pilot

Wing Commander Fraser Barron, a New Zealander and Pathfinder pilot, flew 79 bombing raids over Nazi-held Europe before he died in an aerial collision over Le Mans, France, in May 1944, just prior to the Normandy landings. Fraser became a legend in his own lifetime. Within three years he received a full house Distinguished Service Order and Bar, Distinguished Flying Cross and Distinguished Flying Medal, and was promoted from Sergeant to Wing Commander. He was an outstanding bomber captain, whose skill, bravery, determination and complete disregard for his personal safety, were paramount. He was one of those young airmen who never showed fear, and didnt know when to call it quits. At the time, bomber crews were living on a knife edge every raid was a life and death situation. Their fears were well founded; over 55,000 Bomber Command aircrew were killed. Bomber Barron is a story of a young mans courage, frustration, and at times, desperation. Anyone who flew 79 operations survived because they were superb pilots with accomplished crews and unbelievably lucky!
