

Racial Discrimination: 236 (Issues)

The UK is often hailed as a place of tolerance, acceptance and multiculturalism but, in a recent poll, one in three Brits admitted that they are racist. What is racial discrimination? Are we a nation too concerned with being politically correct? What about free speech? This book explores the current landscape of racism in the UK, and goes on to debate the issues associated with discrimination. Should we concentrate less on the idea of Islamophobia and more on racism as a whole? Is it ever okay to tell racist jokes? What is being done to tackle racism in football? These ideas, and many others, are discussed within.
